Dear Family & Friends,

Pam was all about family. She grew up with a large extended family and spent weekends and summers with them all at the “farm,” their family compound in eastern Connecticut. They were naturalists and birders and readers and woodsmen. Somehow, she married an actor. The old adage, “opposites attract” applies here. She didn’t have a performing bone in her body—at the thought of doing such a thing, the color would rise in her cheeks.

Her children grew up to be actors and musicians, and she presided over the whole lot of us, and we basked in her love and warmth, and in the family she created for us.

Tonight, we gather to honor Pam’s courage and strength while raising funds for a promising new pancreatic cancer research study at the Western Connecticut Health Network (WCHN). Led by Dr. Richard C. Frank, Director of Clinical Cancer Research at WCHN and Pam’s devoted oncologist, the study aims for early detection of pancreatic cancer by exploring the effectiveness of magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) as a screening tool for individuals at higher risk for pancreatic cancer, including those with recent-onset diabetes.

Thanks to your generous support of A Tribute to Pamela, we are raising the seed money needed to launch this critical research study in the hope of helping other families avoid the heartache and loss that accompany pancreatic cancer.

There is no doubt in my mind that Pam would find joy in tonight’s event. My family and I hope that you do, too.

- Please feel free to bring a friend -
Pancreatic Cancer Research Project at WCHN

A Three-Year Screening Study in High-Risk Individuals Including those with Recent-Onset Diabetes Mellitus.

About the Research Project:

- Led by Richard C. Frank, MD hematologist/oncologist and the Director of Clinical Cancer Research at the WCHN Biomedical Research Institute and Norwalk Hospital’s C. Anthony and Jean Whittingham Cancer Center
- Focus on individuals with a family history of pancreatic cancer and those with recent-onset diabetes mellitus
- Will utilize annual magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) exams as a screening tool to detect early pancreatic cancer
- Will create an invaluable serum bio-bank from individuals prior to and at the time of a diagnosis of pancreatic cancer

Anticipated Results:

- Better clinical understanding of risk factors for “sporadic” pancreatic cancer
- Potential to inform widespread adoption of MRI as a screening tool, which could lead to the first-ever reduction in mortality from pancreatic cancer
- A serum bio-bank with the potential to support the development of novel biomarkers for use in detecting pancreatic cancer at its earliest stages
- Potential for collaboration with other hospitals and research institutions.
